Resources for Advancing Education and Careers in Health

"With every move, we make a difference."

THE PROBLEM

The physician-scientist pipeline is collapsing. NIH K-awards—the gateway to independent research careers—reject 60-80% of applicants. Trainees lack protected research time, preliminary data funding, and mentorship access.

Those left behind: first-generation physicians, trainees at less-resourced institutions, and researchers pursuing novel directions.

OUR SOLUTION

REACH provides $11,500 fellowship grants (administered through Emory) for K-award preparation with:

- 12-question structured framework addressing all NIH requirements
- Weekly check-ins identifying barriers early
- Relocation support through vetted real estate partners
- Connection to sponsor resources and mentorship

WHAT MAKES US DIFFERENT

Self-sustaining revenue model. Unlike traditional fellowship programs dependent on cyclical philanthropy, REACH generates recurring income through:

1. Relocation referral fees (~$3,000 per home purchase)
2. Sponsor partnerships ($200/month marketing access)

Our revenue grows with program success—not donor fatigue.
